

Spotlight on Female Winemakers

LISE SADIRAC from CHATEAU PECH-LATT

LISE SADIRAC is both an agronomist and a wine enthusiast, who has been making la Clape wines for the past 11 years. Lise started at Pech-Latt with the 2014 harvest. Truly organic minded, she strives to develop the intense and lively expression of the exceptional terroir of Pech-Latt, by energizing the soils, stimulating biodiversity and giving the best expression of the terroir in the wines.

CHRISTINE JACOBY-SOURDES from CHATEAU DES GRAVES

CHRISTINE JACOBY-SOURDES has always been surrounded by vines. She studied oenology at the Université de Bordeaux and started working in the Fraud Repression Services under Pierre Sudreau in 1986. Mr. Sudreau encouraged Christine to take up his famous oenology laboratory, which she did as the first woman ever to carry out this activity in the Sauternes region. Christine's passion for winemaking is tangible and contagious: her ability to understand and reveal a vineyard's potential is as precise as her rigorous work ethic and sense of humor!

ISABELLE VALLON from CHATEAU BLOUIN

ISABELLE VALLON owns Chateau Blouin and the vineyards in Areyres, near Libourne. While the estate is family-owned and operated, very little is known about Isabelle and her upbringing. This reclusive and private winemaker prefers to show her personality through the quality of the wines she makes from the Graves de Vayres area located on the Right Bank of Bordeaux.
